BAND STORY

"Palser' s earnest, emotional delivery, combined with the lyrics, makes for an urgent and intense listen." Bill Knispel, ProgScape.com

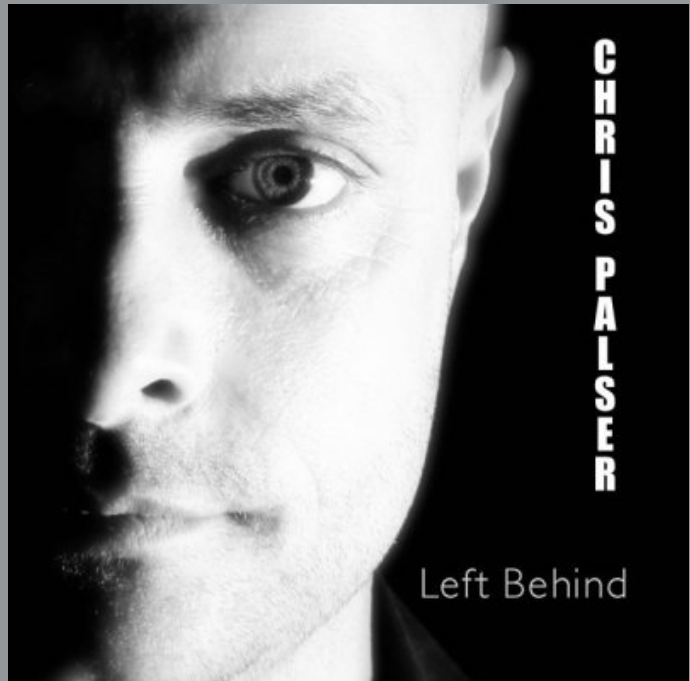

Chris Palser is a progressive rock musician from Prince George, BC, Canada and now lives in Vancouver. "Music is my therapy. Life changes and music is right there. I think it's kept me out of jail." Chris is playing around Vancouver and has recently finished several new songs and is currently recording. Always interested in new opportunities, Chris is looking for potential collaborations. All he'll say about his newest songs is ""they are more tender than Left Behind", the songs from his first CD. In 2008 Chris was honored to share a stage with Gaye Delorme, Jerry Doucette, and Incognito. "So surreal to perform with Rock Stars I listened to in High School!"

Chris released his first CD "Left Behind" in 2006. "His voice and delivery sometimes bears comparison to Ed Kowalczyk (vocalist for Live), while musically his material is contemporary rock with a harder alternative twist." Bill Knispel, ProgScape.com

"a perfect mixture of Jack Johnson and Maroon 5."
Megan Keriliuk, You Think Magazine

"songwriting is one of his greatest strengths"
Josh Hammerstedt, PG This Week.

Chris was introduced to rock and roll by his uncle Ken. The Police and Van Halen were two bands heavily featured on Ken's turntable. In High school Chris began playing guitar with Dave Mummery and Neil Sideen, childhood friends, and began finding his own voice. Metallica and Iron Maiden were two bands heavily featured on the turntable. The next decade would see Chris play in original and cover projects, perform all over North America, once to an audience of thousands. Chris developed his skill while planting trees in the forests of northern BC, he was once shot at by the RCMP (Royal Canadian Mounted Police) during some drunken debauchery while working in Wells BC. It was a divorce that would push Chris out to capture his unique voice. His first CD. "Left Behind".
